It’s Official—The University of Colorado Is Out and Continuum Is In
By Lisa L. Bingham
O
n Friday, January 30, Continuum Partners became the owner of the former University of Colorado Hospital campus.

Now that it’s official, neighbors can expect to see a lot of action on the 12-block property. Saunders Construction, the construction company chosen for the project, will secure the site on Monday, putting up extra fencing and hiring off-duty police officers to patrol the site. Saunders is bringing in Northstar/LVI to complete the abatement of the remaining asbestos and building materials in late February, after which Colorado Cleanup Corporation will begin demolition in the spring.

During a community outreach meeting on January 28, Continuum also confirmed that they have created a partnership with Koelbel, Mile High Development, and Longs Peak Advisors to build an affordable housing project at Hale Parkway & Ash Street. This is currently a parking lot, but will provide at least 100 units when completed in mid-2017.

Additional community meetings will be held throughout the process, with the next meeting tentatively planned for late February or early March. Continuum has put up a website (http://9thandcolorado.com) where they will share meeting announcements, construction updates, and design plans. Questions or concerns can also be sent to info@9thandcolorado.com.

Central Denver Recreation Center Planning Continues
By Aaron Goldhamer
stakeholders meeting for the Central Denver Recreation Center was held on January 7 to present revisions to the proposed layout. Among the items discussed that evening was the layout of the site, groundwater abatement issues, and the project budget, which includes a $2.9 million shortfall.

The layout for the rec center now has the entrance located more squarely at Colfax and Josephine and has shifted the pool back from Josephine. There will be 100 to 125 parking spots on site; this is significantly less than many rec centers, but suits the smaller size of the site, its accessibility via public transit, and the general density around the site. The design will also continue to emphasize a strong pedestrian connection to East High School. The use for the northwest corner of the site is still undetermined, but stormwater detention, a small dog park, or some other outdoor activities are being considered. Stormwater detention is a significant issue due to the site’s slope.

Groundwater contamination of MTBE—a gasoline additive used in the 1970s—is thought to be coming from a leaking fuel tank at the SunMart, but this not definitive. There will be continued monitoring of this issue to confirm that the contamination is not spreading further. This issue is in part responsible for the re-orientation of the site, as well as the extent to which the pool will be dug out below grade. The revised design will reduce costs of..

Congress Park’s Vision (1995 Neighborhood Plan)

More Frequent Large Item Pickups Figure Into Congress Park Spring Plans
By Ann Charles

It might be snowing now, but Congress Park neighbors are thinking about de-cluttering and Alley Clean-up parties. They’re planning those activities around Denver Waste Management’s improved Large Item Pick up schedule. The City has increased LIP to every six weeks, and the first Congress Park pickups of 2015 are scheduled for the weeks of February 2, then March 16 and April 27. Pickups are on your normal day for trash service during that week. For more details, or to sign up for alerts, see denverGov.org/trash.

Sustainability in Congress Park
By Lisa L. Bingham

Sustainability is no longer just a catch phrase or a passing fad. For businesses, sustainability is no longer something to differentiate them from the competition, but an expectation of their customers. Homeowners can increase their comfort levels about their energy footprints and reduce energy bills.

Over the past ten years, Denver has made major strides in improving sustainability across the city. In 2005, the city formalized their goals with the Greenprint Denver action plan. Since then, Denver has been recognized for its efforts in energy efficiency, transportation, renewable energy, water, and green business practices.

Moving forward, Denver wants to build on past success, expand the scale of programs and collaboration with the community. One way City staff are doing this is with the Sustainable Neighborhood Program, which leverages the resources of an entire community to further sustainability goals. Neighborhoods that participate in the program also benefit by increasing social connectivity between neighbors, building economic value by supporting local businesses, and promoting environmental health.

The Sustainable Neighborhood Program focuses on five categories: energy, air, water, land, and people. Neighborhood residents set goals, organize workshops and events, develop resources, and perform inventories to earn points toward certification. These could include educational workshops on energy reduction or water conservation, research into a community solar program, setting up a weekly walking group, developing a neighborhood tree inventory, promoting transportation alternatives with ride-sharing, RTD, B-cycle, and privately owned bike maintenance and safety promotion, alley cleanups, getting households signed up for recycling and the Compost Collection program, or any of a wide array of initiatives.

Based on the number of credits earned, neighborhoods can receive certification as either a “Participating Neighborhood” or an “Outstanding Neighborhood.”

Congress Park’s proximity to downtown and major traffic corridors like Colorado and Colfax, several bus routes, a dedicated bike lane, business districts on Colfax and 12th Avenue within easy walking distance, as well as the up-and-coming 9th & Colorado redevelopment, all contribute to making our neighborhood a prime location in Denver. Through Denver’s Sustainable Neighborhood Program, we can capitalize on these assets and make Congress Park one of the premier neighborhoods in Denver.

A proposal for Congress Park to participate in the program was raised at the December meeting of Congress Park Neighbors and was provisionally accepted. If you would like to get involved in developing the program, please contact the Congress Park Neighbors board at cpnboard@congressparkneighbors.org.

Teller Blooms in Spring with Cultures, Dance and Theatre

By Lisa Aiken

Spring is just around the corner and Teller Elementary will be brimming with many fun springtime events.

First off, with an Under-the-Sea theme, is the Scholastic Spring Book Fair, which will take place the week of March 16 through the 20. For more information, visit the following link two weeks prior: http://bookfairs.scholastic.com/homepage/tellerelementaryschool1

At Teller Elementary, differences are embraced and celebrated. The school culture is one that fosters a World Citizen mentality. To showcase this, Teller’s Drama and Arts department with be featuring a Multicultural Night on March 16 at 5:30 p.m. Songs, dances and skits representing the various cultures at Teller, will be performed by first and second graders.

The event also features six student-led “make-and-take” crafting activities sponsored by each classroom. A buffet table will be set up for families to bring and share various foods and delicacies from their culture. Families and visitors are encouraged to wear cultural attire as well. Our wonderful art teacher, Mrs. Taft, is looking for parent feedback on ideas for the crafting activities. Please email her at KATIE_TAFT@dpsk12.org.

Great Denver Cleanup is Saturday, May 9

Keep Denver Beautiful, a program of the City of Denver, will provide stationary trash trucks at various sites to collect discarded Household items, Yard Waste & Goodwill donations. This event is FREE for Denver residents. See denvergov.org/KDB for more details.

This is a great opportunity to plan your neighborhood cleanup. Share information with your neighbors and make plans to clean out our alleys, garages and yards.
Tellerpalooza Turns 12!

By Lisa Aiken

Coming up in May, the 12th annual Tellerpalooza concert fundraiser returns to the legendary Bluebird Theater on East Colfax Avenue, for an evening of music, culture, food and fun. The public, as always, is welcome to the event, which serves as a vital funding lifeline for Teller Elementary’s school programs, including music, art, reading and math.

In addition to the outstanding musical line-up, Tellerpalooza 2015 will feature food trucks, a bake sale, a merchandise market with Tellerpalooza tees and gear from performing bands and other fundraising opportunities.

The event kicks off at 4 p.m. with performances by Teller’s own budding voices and musicians. More information will be posted on the website: www.Tellerpalooza.com. Please stay tuned and check for updates as the date draws nearer.

Tellerpalooza wouldn’t be possible without the generous support of Denver’s music community who donate their time and talents for the event. Among the list from last year were: Dragondeer (fronted by Eric Halborg, the dad of a Teller student), Safe Boating Is No Accident, The Other Black, Amanda Hawkins, Claymore Disco and Chimney.

Thanks also to the generous corporate sponsorship which included The Bluebird Theater/AEG Live; modern rock KTCL Channel 93.3; TAG Burger Bar; Lisa Santos RE/MAX Cherry Creek, Rosen Properties; Sprouts Farmers Market; and Colorado Commercial Services.

Century Link Could Provide Cable Competition

By Jeanne Robb, Denver City Council District 10

Century Link is proposing a franchise to provide cable TV service to residents in Denver. As you know, Century Link, formerly Quest, already provides phone and internet service to Denver residents. Those services do not require a franchise but under City, State, and Federal law, cable TV services require a franchise with the City.

Currently Comcast has the sole franchise for cable TV service in Denver. Much of the proposed Century Link franchise would mirror the Comcast franchise. Having two cable providers in the city of Denver could increase competition, a key point of the 2006 federal telecommunications law. A clear and concise executive summary by the city attorney’s office is available at SIRE Public Access. Look for public hearings.
Applicant Don Novak has applied for a retail marijuana license for the storefront at 3121 E. Colfax. The applicant already has a medical marijuana license, and is proposing a co-located medical and retail establishment. There is a public hearing at 9 a.m., March 2 at the Webb Building. The city’s public hearing notice states:

“At the time of the public hearing on March 2, you will be required to prove why said application should be approved in accordance with the Denver Retail Marijuana Code. The Department of Excise and Licenses has designated an area around your location on a map. You must present up to three adult witnesses who are residents or business owners/managers from the designated area to testify in support of the application.

“… The protestant to the application, if there are any, will also be allowed to present up to three witnesses to testify individually and others to testify as a group. Representatives from any registered neighborhood organizations in the area will also be allowed to testify regarding the organization’s position.”

Please send your response to this application to CPNBoard@congressparkNeighbors.org.

Summer Meals Sponsors

Food That’s In When School is Out
By Anjali Budhiraja

Summer is coming and thousands of children in Colorado will experience hunger when they no longer have access to school lunch. You may be able to help.

The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP), administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Colorado Department of Education, ensures that children continue to receive nutritious meals during the summer, when they do not have access to school lunch or breakfast. The Summer Food Service Program began in 1968 and provides nutritious food that’s “in” when school is “out”.

Last summer, about 19,000 children ate free summer meals each day at over 400 locations across Colorado, a small fraction of the number of children who would be eligible for these meals. This year, the state is reaching out to partners to ensure that even more children have access to meals.

Colorado organizations can serve as sponsors for the SFSP, and operate feeding sites. The location and type of site may depend on the number of students who are eligible for free and reduced-price meals in a neighborhood or area.

Sponsors run meal sites, which can be at schools, parks, libraries, recreation centers, and other places where kids congregate. Many creative partnerships have arisen to link food and activity resources at sites.

If you know of any organization that may be interested in becoming a Sponsor or a site, contact the Colorado Department of Education, School Nutrition Office. Sponsors must complete a training that takes place in March. For more information, please visit http://www.cde.state.co.us/nutrition/nutrisummer or contact Ashley Moen at moen_a@cde.state.co.us or 303-866-6653.

CRES Launches “Why So Cold?”

CRES’ “Why So Cold?” energy efficiency campaign connects home owners and buyers with resources for targeted upgrades
By David Morrison

On February 16, the Colorado Renewable Energy Society (CRES) launched a home energy efficiency campaign, entitled “Why So Cold?”, to alert Denver home owners and buyers to the benefits and affordability of energy efficiency and to direct them to resources to upgrade their homes. The campaign, which aims to boost levels of participation in local and federal efficiency programs, will culminate in an educational event at the end of March featuring home efficiency experts and services.

The benefits of an efficient home are the same year-round—greater thermal comfort and lower energy bills. Owning a quality home that stays warm in the winter and cool in the summer is an excellent reason itself for improvements such as attic insulation. However, once you take into account that many upgrades pay for themselves in saved energy costs and there are financing options that eliminate the up-front cost, you might ask yourself, “Why So Cold?”

FHA energy efficient mortgages (EEMs), for instance, are a tool for home buyers that actually reduce the cost of ownership for a house. By financing only cost-effective upgrades and including the cost of efficiency upgrades in the mortgage, the monthly energy savings exceed the amount added to mortgage payment. This eliminates the up-front cost, increases the home’s comfort and has buyers saving from day one. If you are buying a home built before the 90s, look into an EEM.

For home owners in the City and County of Denver, the Denver Energy Challenge makes upgrading your home affordable and easy. The free service helps home owners with free energy advising, obtaining and reviewing bids from qualified contractors and applying for all applicable rebates and financing.

Be comfortable. Pay less . . . Why So Cold?

Check us out at whysocold.org for more information and for a “Why So Cold?” educational event in your area.
Make Your Home a Safer Place

By Shelley Wood

In the winter, we tend to cocoon indoors and it’s a good time to make sure that your home is safer than those icy streets. Here are some places to check, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention.

Falling - the Number One Problem

- Make sure you have a non-slip surface in the bath or shower - add a rubber mat or replace flooring if needed.
- Add a shower seat as a safe way to position yourself for leg shaving and other ‘one foot’ activities.
- Add grab bars or bannisters to bathroom and staircase areas where a stumble could occur.

Install nightlights in the bathroom and other places you visit in the dark night.

Other Concerns - Cuts and Fires

- Make sure knives are kept sharp -- dull knives require more pressure and are more likely to slip!
- Don’t leave knives in soapy water where you could accidentally grab the blade.
- Store knives in a knife holder, out of reach of little hands.
- Make sure your smoke detectors are working and keep a fire extinguisher in the kitchen.
- Clean out your dryer vent with a long bristle brush to prevent dryer fires.
- Avoid using the heated dry setting on your dishwasher unless you are nearby.

Outside

- Make everything easier to see with porch lights. On a timer, they’re helpful to you, your mailman, your dog-walking friend, and neighbors watching out for you.
- The steps to the porch and sidewalks should always have a bannister to grab.
- Check for icy spots on sidewalks and porch steps created by downspouts or drips - apply snow melt!
- If you see that a neighbor is out of town or ill, run a shovel along their walk as a courtesy.

Help for Senior Adults with Taxes and Rent

Do you wonder if you’ll be able to pay rent or property taxes this year? The Senior Property Tax Deferral program is available to those age 65 and over who live in their own home and whose property taxes from previous years are paid in full. If the property has a mortgage, the mortgage lender must agree to place the State of Colorado in first position on the lien.

To apply for a Property Tax Deferral, the individual must file an application between January 1 and April 1 each year with the county treasurer’s office. The State of Colorado will pay the county for the property taxes each year the application is made with the county treasurer. Interest is charged by the State of Colorado. When the property is sold, the tax lien will be paid and a clear title can be presented to the new buyer.

In addition, the grant is available to Senior property owners as well as Senior renters who do not live in “non-profit” or “subsidized” housing. Individuals who live in non-profit or subsidized housing are eligible for the heat credit, but not the rent credit.

For copies of forms and assistance to complete the forms, call 303-333-3482 or 1-855-880-4777.

Zonta Sponsors Film Festival Screening to Highlight Advocacy For Women

The 7th annual Zonta Club of Denver Day of Film will feature a screening of “Jhola” during the 2015 Denver Film Society’s 5th annual Women+Film Festival VOICES. Showcasing a mix of documentaries, narrative and short films to celebrate the best in women-centric stories from around the world, VOICES runs March 17 - 22. Zonta Club of Denver is proud to be a continuing VOICES sponsor.

This 9:45 a.m. Saturday, March 21 screening at the SIE FilmCenter at 2510 East Colfax, is a ZCD Foundation fundraiser. The $40 ticket will include the full-length movie, parking and a brunch reception. Proceeds will finance projects of the Zonta Club of Denver benefiting at-risk women in the Denver area. Purchase tickets at www.zonta-denver.org.

Nepal submitted “Jhola” as its 2015 Oscar entry for best foreign film. It depicts the Sati tradition in which Hindu women were forced to commit suicide on the funeral pyres of their spouses. While legally abolished in 1920 in Nepal, some communities still follow the custom. However horrific the practice of Sati, the movie also shows the redeeming strength of people banding together to improve their circumstances. Join us as we share this film for just its second public showing in the US.

Last year’s Day of Film proceeds helped at-risk Denver women improve their skills and become self-sufficient.

Zonta Club of Denver was chartered in 1927 and, as part of Zonta International, is united with more than 30,000 executives in business and the professions in over 1,200 clubs in 65 countries to improve the status of marginalized women and children worldwide. National Philanthropy Day Colorado recognized ZCD as its “Outstanding Service Organization” for 2011.
Central Denver Rec Center Planning Continues

By Aaron Goldhamer

...construction with respect to the contamination.

The base cost of the rec center is now estimated to be $23.87 million, which does not include construction costs for some adjacent retail space (estimated at $600,000), finishing off the rooftop for an event space ($830,000), a walk/jog track ($500,000) around the “mezzanine” level overlooking the basketball court and exercise area, and a climbing wall on the exterior of the building ($150,000). Denver currently has a budget of $23.1 million for the rec center, meaning that the project faces a $2.9M shortfall. The additional elements could be added as funds become available, but additional funding will be needed to meet the base costs.

There are various proposals to address this shortfall. One option is a loan of some sort that would be repaid from rent income on the site, including event rentals in the rec center as well as the retail space. Naming-rights for the sponsorship of a major element of the construction (such as the pool) could be available for a significant donation worth 50% of the cost of that feature.

While the city isn’t sure that the community would a corporate name for the whole center, naming rights for the component pieces (such as the pool) appears more palatable. Additional fundraising proposals include grant money, selling the land underlying the proposed retail space, and trying to fit some additional development (possibly housing) onto the site and selling that space.

Brad Buchanan, executive director of the Denver Department of Community Planning and Development, presented on the “pros” of additional development. He mentioned the increased density and activity at the site, as well as additional underground parking for housing, but also noted that the timeline for this development in conjunction with the Rec Center itself could be problematic.

Gordon Roberston, Director of Park Planning, presented some “con” aspects of the additional development, including the possibility of too much activity on the site, the possible lack of architectural control over a developer, and the notion that additional development on the site would detract from Denver’s attempted “City in a Park” feel.

Further discussion of the added development led to a consensus that if it was going to happen, there would need to be a concerted communication effort between the City and the public. There may be some strong resistance to the idea in light of the onsite retail and the perception that Denver’s public spaces are being overly privatized and commoditized.

There does not appear to be any resolution at this point between the city and Denver Public Schools concerning any usage of the student parking lot across 16th Street. It was noted that during certain times of day, that lot is packed with student cars, especially in the spring when more students obtain driver’s licenses.
Compost Collection Program Includes Half of Congress Park

By Denver Public Works

With the expansion of Denver’s Compost Collection Program in 2015, nearly the whole southern half of Congress Park can collect and contribute compostables to the effort. Organic material like food, soiled paper and yard debris is the single largest item we throw away in our landfill, and it is 100% compostable.

Participants in the Denver’s Compost Collection Program receive a large, green composting cart and weekly collection. Organic material such as yard debris, food and soiled paper are all accepted in the program. Only material inside the green cart can be collected.

To find out if your home is within a Composting Collection program area visit https://www.denver.gov.org/trashrecycling/TrashandRecycling/Composting/CompostCollectionProgram/tabid/438328/Default.aspx. If you’re not yet included, let your elected officials know it’s time to include all of Congress Park.

The Compost Collection program is a fee-based program. Participants may make $29.25 quarterly payments (every three months) or a single payment for one year. The majority of participants choose to prepay for the year and pay online. It saves money, paper and time!

How the program works: You toss yard debris, food and non-recyclable paper into your green cart for Denver Recycles to collect. Denver Recycles delivers the organic material collected to a composting facility run by A1 Organics. They put the organic material through a natural process that transforms it into compost that is sold to farmers and landscapers.
